

Factors of Production Annotated Illustration

Directions: Over the last few days, the class has focused on the parts and purpose of the factors of production. Your job is to select a product (This could be a product that currently exists or one that you would like to produce if you had the chance) and create an annotated illustration that connects to the production of this good or service. Your annotated illustration MUST include the following:

On the FRONT:

1. a title: "Factors of Production and _____" (YOUR product name)
2. a colored visual (use the format of the visual above as a reference) that displays the production of the good or service (The drawing should be your best work - one that is worthy of being displayed on the refrigerator)
3. the headings; Natural Resource, Capital Resource, and Human Resource labeled and directing the viewer's attention to the part of the illustration that represents the factor of production

On the BACK:

1. your name
2. a list of the possible natural, capital, and human resources associated with the production of this good or service. List as many as you can think of for this product.
3. an explanation as to why each (The 3 labeled on the front) would fall under the heading of natural resource, capital resource, or human resource.